U. S. WILL RENEW EFFORTS TO END RAILROAD STRIKE

GOVERNMENT WILL NOT STOP AT RESTRAINING ORDER.

CONTROL URGED

Shoppers Would Return if Uncle Sam Took Over Roads; Troops Next?

By DAVID LAWRENCE. Copyright, 1922, by The Janesville Gazette.

Washington.—Further efforts to settle the railroad strike may be expected this week. The federal government is not content with the restraining orders it has obtained from the courts to prevent violence and interruption of traffic. Unofficial moves to mediate are a natural corollary of the situation. The success of mediation in the hard coal strike and the peaceful ending of the soft coal controversy have made even more necessary the finding of some common ground for the settlement of the railroad strike.

Unless cars are available to move the coal that is produced, the ending of the coal strike will have been futile. The entire attention of the government now is concentrated on the rail dispute. Attorney General Daugherty's statement to the federal court in Chicago that equipment was defective and that 1,000 mail trains had to be cancelled does not augur well for the optimistic expressions from the headquarters of the railway executives about normalcy on their roads.

The executives have been issuing statements in an effort to induce strikers to come back to work, it being assumed that the strikers will grow panicky and flock back to their posts as they see their jobs being permanently moving. But the morale of the strikers is not so easily broken and the government knows exactly how bad are transportation conditions.

Government Must Act. Two fundamentals, however, interpose themselves in the situation—the railroads cannot be compelled to take Edward Krenn, twenty-eight, reported fiancé of Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick, fifty, inset.

Chicago.—Do June-December romances run in the blood of the millionaire McCormick family? "Yes," seems to be the answer if past events and present rumors are considered. Some months ago came the startling news that Mathilda McCormick, 17 year old heiress to the Harvester millions and daughter of Harold F. McCormick and his divorced wife, Edith Rockefeller, was to wed Max Oser, Swiss groom just a year or so younger than her father. McCormick has passed his 50th milestone in life's journey. BISHOP FALLOWS DIES IN CHICAGO

[By Associated Press.] Chicago.—Bishop Samuel Fallow, head of the Reformed Episcopal Church, died at 4:30 a. m. Tuesday.

Bishop Fallow, a famous as preacher, soldier, author and lecturer, had been ill about a month. His first was reported in a serious condition because of his age—he was approaching his 87th birthday—on Aug. 16.

The presiding bishop had returned to his home in Chicago from California Aug. 14 and his illness was attributed to exhaustion from the overland trip.

Samuel Fallow was born Dec. 12, 1835, at Pendleton, near Manchester, England. His parents migrated to Wisconsin in 1848 to engage in farming. Thus Samuel Fallow grew up as a farmer and near Madison. His first schooling was at Ashtabula, Wis., and then at Lawrence college of Appleton. There he first began to preach.

In 1859, on graduation at Wisconsin, he was appointed vice-president of Galoisville, Wis., "University."

In 1860, Mr. Fallow married Lucy Betula Huntington of Marshall, Wis., sister of former Bishop Frederick D. Huntington of New York. The four children born to this marriage are: Samuel Huntington Fallow, attorney, New York; Major Charles Samuel Fallow, lawyer, Saratoga, Cal.; Mrs. Helen May Fallow, of San Francisco and Alice.

PROHIBITION ISSUE IS DOMINANT AT WISCONSIN POLLS

WETS AND DRYS LINED UP ON CONGRESS CANDIDATES.

CONTESTS MANY Vital Question Results in Sharp Campaigns in Almost All Districts.

[By Associated Press.] Madison.—Prohibition stood out as a dominant issue of the republican congressional contests in the Wisconsin general election primary Tuesday as voters went to the polls. Choice of a Wisconsin delegation favorable to their stand on the wet and dry question was actively sought by both the Wisconsin Anti-Saloon league and the Wisconsin division of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment. Six of the 11 members of congress from Wisconsin during the last term were considered wet by the Anti-Saloon league, which is making an effort to capture control of the delegation.

The contest for U. S. senator between Senator R. M. La Follette and W. A. Garfield has brought Anti-Saloon league endorsement to Garfield and opposition to La Follette. Opposition to Garfield is expressed by the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, which says the record of Senator La Follette "is satisfactory on our question."

Cooper vs. Whittelet. In the first congressional district, Congressman H. A. Cooper, endorsed by the Anti-Saloon league, is opposed by Lawrence C. Whittelet, who is the association against prohibition to be "satisfactory on our question," and by the Anti-Saloon league to have "voted dry in the assembly."

Both Congressman Voight and Edward F. Gehl, his opponent for the nomination in the second district, are opposed to prohibition, according to expressions from both the Anti-Saloon league and the association against prohibition.

Two Drys, Two Wets. Two dry candidates and two candidates opposed to prohibition are running in the third district. Congressman Sutherland is the association against prohibition.

CHURCH BOARD TO RETAIN MARION

Apologies Feature All-Night Session—Four Are Asked to Resign.

After what amounted virtually to an all night session of the official board, officers of the First Christian church announced Tuesday morning that all difficulties had been adjusted and that the board voted to ask Rev. Leiland L. Marion to remain with the church as pastor. The board also recommended that for the sake of harmony one church officer, two Sunday school teachers and one Sunday school officer, present resignations to be asked upon by the congregation next Sunday morning.

Apologies Are Numerous.

It was said further that those responsible for the accusations circulated regarding the pastor, admitted themselves mistaken, and that apologies on all sides were the order of the day.

The board meeting proper adjourned at 10:30, but on descending to the first floor, the members found a group of 30 persons, some of whom it is held are not members of the church, who demanded that the church officers give them a hearing.

Matters Are Adjusted.

A several hours' session followed, during which it appears many matters not pertinent to the business of the church were brought up for discussion, while other matters about which there had been more or less misunderstanding were cleared up in a manner generally satisfactory from the standpoint of the church as a whole.

It was said that Mr. Marion announced that he would consent to remain here only with the understanding that in case the church did not accept the membership causes any further trouble they would be called to account and their names dropped from the church roll.

U. S. Court Order Is Served on Two Janesville Men

Charged with calling Reuben W. Bickle, 423 North Main street, a "yellow scab," federal court orders were served on two Janesville men Tuesday morning by United States Marshal William Toulton, Madison. The men served are Harold Bick, 609 Cherry street, and Willard Smith, 28 North East street.

According to the charges, the two men accosted Bickle on West Milwaukee street, while he was accompanied by his wife. It is alleged they turned to Bickle's wife, remarking: "Your husband is no good. He's a yellow scab."

Bickle is a railroad car inspector. The men are ordered to appear in federal district court at Superior Thursday morning. They are both striking shopmen. St. Paul officials said Tuesday that the Northwestern Federal action may be taken on the parade of strike sympathizers at the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul roundhouse here Saturday afternoon. This was intimated Tuesday by United States Deputy Marshal Johnson, stationed on duty at the St. Paul shops. It is declared the men also appeared at the South Janesville yards of the Northwestern, where they were ignored.

Saturday's demonstration did not amount to anything, said Chief of Police Charles Newman, Tuesday. "Those men were sober and doing no harm," he said. "All they wanted was to try to get the names of some of the workers, which they did not do. There still have to be some thing bigger than that, before I will gather my men and go up there."

Statement Given Out. An official statement on the condition of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway was given Tuesday by F. W. Zimmerman, local agent.

On July, the first month of the shopmen's strike, the Milwaukee railroad loaded more cars per work-

Solegren, of Rockford, Stricken Suddenly Along Road East of City.

Seized by an attack of heart failure, Julius Solegren, 31 Rockford, dropped dead late Monday afternoon five miles east of Janesville on the Milton road. FOUR FARM HOMES ROBBED LABOR DAY

Avon Township Houses Ransacked as Families Were at Picnic.

While members of the household were at a day picnic in Plymouth township, four farm houses in Avon township were robbed by daylight thieves who ransacked the houses. It is reported two gold watches, other jewelry and about $200 in cash was obtained by the thieves.

Four of the houses robbed were along the same road—Broadhead, route 15. They were the house of Mathew Olson, John Bright, Ray Bartlett and Edward Gilbert, the sheriff's office reported.

Deputy Sheriff Fred Beley made a investigation of the robberies Monday night and arrested Ben Keeney, Beloit, as a suspect. He is in jail being questioned. His release is expected, as the authorities were unable to connect him with the robberies.

The searching of the farm homes was done in a hasty manner and the thieves overlooked considerable property at each of the houses. On the return home, farmers found their living rooms ransacked, with furniture tipped over, clothes strewn over the rooms and in one instance the thieves took time to raid the pantry of cake and meats.

TWO OUTSTANDING FIGURES.

The political primary campaign in Wisconsin has brought to the front two men who, whatever may be the result of the primary, will take high places in the political life of the state hereafter. William J. Morgan, who is young as a candidate for the office to which he has aspired, has been a new road for the forward-looking and hopeful. He has been a candidate for office on a set of principles which have called to his support hundreds of men and women. There is not a thing in that program of principles—it is more of a program that a platform—that will not be helpful to the state. There is not a single destructive thing in it and not one item that can be called an impediment to either industrial or general progress. Nor does he appeal to class or race—there is nothing of the demagogue in the set of principles. This alone will stamp him as a man of the highest and best ideals and as an apostle of constructive advancement.

Another figure is William A. Ganfield. He was called to a task—a task he did not solicit. Let it be understood that there has been a feeling that La Follette, appealing to every class of discontent, racial, and industrial, to prejudice and to every form of demagoguery, was considered inevitable and whoever might be selected by the republican state conference as a candidate, would be a sacrifice. But William A. Ganfield has made a marvelous campaign. From sneering at first at the "Rev." Ganfield—a cheap and peanut form of political attack—the La Follette group suddenly discovered that there was grave danger and the lies were redoubled in number and the campaign for the socialistic La Follette ticket was given serious attention which had heretofore been thought unnecessary. With cold logic, with array of reason presented with eloquent tongue the campaign of disloyalty, of falsehood and false issues was met by Mr. Ganfield from the day the republican nominee made his first speech up to the present time, the questions asked by Mr. Ganfield have remained unanswered. What is more, they never will be.

For this reason it may be said that Mr. Ganfield will take his place among the leaders of the republican party in the state of Wisconsin. Whatever may be the result today in the primary, the battle for redemption of Wisconsin and her fair name from the charge of disloyalty will go on, and be finished. Mr. La Follette's victory would mean an end to the republican party in the state of Wisconsin if the campaign were allowed to stop at the primary. For if the republican party means anything it means something besides the things La Follette and Victor Berger, now in partnership, represent. And the new republican party demands leadership. Where can we go and find more logical leadership than in William J. Morgan, the fearless and honest, and William A. Ganfield, the eloquent and logical advocate?

There seems to have been a failure to note the arrival of the oyster.

WE CAN LEARN FROM DENMARK

We can learn in America from Denmark. We have the most inefficient marketing of crops in the world. On the other hand Denmark has the best agricultural distribution system of the world. On land, much of which an American would have turned from as almost hopeless, it has developed a great dairy, fruit, poultry, cattle, sheep, hog and garden truck industry, and through co-operative marketing, which embraces every one who raises anything from an egg to a drove of steers. It not only feeds all Denmark, but London and goodly part of the British Isles. Farm produce is collected with the regularity that a postman collects letters. The collector gives a receipt for the produce. What isn't required for Copenhagen and other cities of Denmark goes by express steamers to London. These vessels sail on schedule time. Danish farmers go to school in winter to study agriculture. Danish mothers go to school, too. Danish girls from royalty down, engaged to be married, go to school to take courses in house-keeping.

By real co-operative marketing, Denmark has made itself one of the few sound, prosperous nations of Europe. At the same time, although Denmark has a king, it is about the nearest approach to a real democracy presented today.

If Mr. Ford gets to be president will he sell hivers at post offices?

The collapse of the Alton road cannot be laid to any recent event. It has been coming for several years. The road has been financially water-logged since Harbison and others began to gamble with it and loaded it with bonds and stock up to $180,000 a mile. There had to be a washout.

PSYCHOLOGY AND COURTS
By FREDERIC J. HASKIN.
Washington.—The psychologist, with his uncanny knowledge of human complexes, may soon be expected to play an important part in our courts of justice.
In almost every trial there are baffling points in the testimony. Was the witness telling the truth when he said that he saw the prisoner at 7 o'clock on the evening of the crime, wearing a brown suit and a green necktie? Could another witness be believed when he insisted that the shot was fired by the man directly in front of him and not by any person back of him?
Some problems like these are left for almost every jury to face after the possibilities of legal strategy have been exhausted. Yet the jury is expected to weigh all this evidence and arrive at a conclusion.

With a legal psychologist in court, justice can be meted out with more exactness, so the psychologists themselves tell us. The witness who was so emphatic about the clothes worn by the man he met might have his story shot to atoms by a psychological explanation that colors cannot be distinguished at twilight. It is a fact that the brain has no mechanism for distinguishing colors at dusk. One and all, they are seen as shades of gray.

As for the shot fired in front of the witness, psychologists have proved that a shot fired directly behind a person cannot be distinguished from one fired directly in front. In such circumstances an individual is not capable of saying from which direction the sound came.

These examples indicate the sort of assistance the psychologist who specializes in legal and criminal branches of his subject might be called upon to give to the courts.

Bench and bar are inclined to look on psychology as a science with the experimental stage. Although a psychologist may have a doctor's degree from a first class university and a string of discoveries to his credit, he is likely to be told that his methods and tests are not yet 100 per cent reliable, and that therefore his evidence cannot be accepted as expert testimony.

Psychologists are naturally somewhat sad over this state of reactionary tendencies on the part of the legal profession, but they are not discouraged. History is merely repeating itself. They recall that identification by finger prints was once regarded as bunk by fool proof detectives. It took time to convince the world that an exact science could be based on the formation of skin at the finger tips.

It will take time to prove to the layman that each human mind is not a law unto itself, but is constructed and can be analyzed like any other well ordered apparatus. Complexes there are, innumerable and difficult to account for, but the psychologist now has back of him carefully tested principles that enable him to analyze his subjects with reasonable exactness.

One hundred per cent accuracy is hardly to be expected. Medicine has been practised thousands of years, the psychologist points out, but it is not an absolutely accurate science.

But the trial and error theories of 19 years ago, what is more, they disagree with one another. Yet the testimony of a physician or an alienist is given careful consideration by the courts.

The use of expert advice of various sorts in legal cases has been growing steadily. When civilization moved at a slower pace and courts had less crowded dockets, a trial might drag along with less serious consequences. Evidence might be gone over time and again until some slip was noted or until it was clear that the jury would simply have to guess at the method of presenting testimony has more and more given place to research methods. The scientific detective of the fiction magazines is a reality. Few lawyers and detectives are the versatile authorities on all manner of subjects that the story book hero always is, but they do know when and where to get expert opinion, and the results are often astounding.

Hans Gross, the well known criminologist, has pointed out how the microscope in the hands of an expert can reveal important facts not obtainable by other means. A nondescript bit of hair takes on personality under a microscope lens. It is possible, Professor Gross says, to tell upon what part of the body the hair has grown, and whether it is the hair of a man or a woman. The condition of the hair may also be studied. The fact that it showed signs of dye or of pomade, for instance, might prove to be a significant clue.

If the roots of the hair are available, the age of the person can also be determined to a certain extent. Dipped in a solution of caustic potash the roots will dissolve, and the younger the person the more rapidly the process takes place. Such tests are often used in criminal investigations.

Dust is another interesting kind of evidence which becomes significant only in the hands of a scientist. Dust is important in criminal cases because it is made up of organic matter from our surroundings.

A mysterious coat was found on the scene of a certain crime. It was placed on a strong paper sack and beaten with sticks to release the dust. The sample collected from the bag was then analyzed. It revealed bits of wax and matted fibers pulverized, and a gelatine and powdered addition of the glue pointed to a joiner. The clue was followed and the guilty person, a joiner, apprehended.

Gunsmiths, anatomists, chemists, and authorities on plant and animal life are called in to point out facts that the layman, however clever, does not know how to see. But so far the human mind has rarely been subjected to scientific scrutiny in court except in cases when insanity is suspected. Witnesses tinge their evidence with hate or determined loyalty and no jury can be sure as to what allowance should be made for these variations.

In Germany the legal psychologist is established as a consulting agent, known as "the friend of the court." In Chicago courts, some experiments have been made along a similar line. Aside from these ventures the legal psychologist has not yet gained recognition as an expert witness.

LIFE'S JOYS
These several joys must come to all:
The beauty of the morning sun,
The glory of a task well done,
The laughter of a friendly call.
It matters not who he may be,
Though rich or poor, or dull or wise,
Earth spreads her splendors for his eyes
And charges him no tithe or fee.
And there is glory in each task
Which by the humblest is possessed,
The pride of having done his best,
And God no more than this will ask.

No place, nor power, nor pomp nor skill,
Nor silver nor the yellow gold,
The beauty of the sun can hold,
The toiler's cottage will fill all.
Night brings a tap upon the door,
A friend has come with words of cheer,
The long day's worries disappear,
The rich man's friend can do no more.
Vainly we struggle while we live,
Seeking some faded joys afar,
While at our hand earth's treasures are,
Which life to all of us will give.

Germans are imitating American cigars. If there is such a thing as the height of insanity, we would say it must be an American cigar in imitation form.

It seems a shame the president couldn't have sent that message to congress "collected."

If you do not believe legs have advanced in cost, consult these figures: The first Follette cost $25,000. The present Follette cost $350,000. If you don't believe it, ask the press agent.

They say Sing Sing is overcrowded with guests from New York; but if everybody in New York went there who ought to go, overcrowded would be a tame word indeed.

She was a solemn, rustic, resolute, worthy woman. Her father had been a doctor enough to accumulate a large fortune and had left it to her when he departed from this world. She had married a bearded headed, fantastical, cordial, pleasant, nocturnal, genial, popular, laughing and adventurous young man.

The marriage did not last. He divorced her. She and he with the fortunes met and married. They are now leading a chaste, canonical, doctrinal, solemn, lofty and stately life together. The end will come and they will be relieved.

She and he without fortune met and married. They are now leading a fantastical, pleasant, extravagant, precious, genial life together. They are having a celestial time.

Who's Who Today
GOV. ALFRED A. TAYLOR.

Will the electric chair in the state penitentiary death house elect the next governor of Tennessee?
Gov. Alfred A. Taylor, running for re-election, says it will and he's campaigning for another term on his record of law enforcement and non-interference with the death sentences of the courts.

Taylor resisted all appeals for clemency when eleven persons were sentenced to death in the last six months. All have paid the supreme penalty.

Taylor is seventy-four. He is now completing his first term, in 1923 he ran for governor against his brother, the late Robert L. Taylor, and was defeated.

Republicans claim he will win by 30,000. His Democratic opponent is Austin Peay of Clarksville.

Taylor was admitted to the Tennessee bar in 1870. He has been a member of the state legislature and served two terms in congress.

He is married and lives at Milligan College, Tenn.

LOOKING BACKWARD
FORTY YEARS AGO

Sept. 5, 1882.—Comrade W. T. Brayton, who left for Washington, D. C., this morning, to enter upon his duties as a clerk in the pension offices of the government, was given a farewell reception by the G. A. R. last night. A novel feature of the state fair at Fond du Lac will be the appearance of a band of 35 full-blooded Indians.

THIRTY YEARS AGO
Sept. 5, 1892.—The $50,000 colt of Fred Pabst, Milwaukee, is in the stables in this city and is not expected to live.—German carp are said to be plentiful in the sun pond, and are being scooped up in pails.—The fair will be held here this coming week and promises to be one of the best ever seen.

TWENTY YEARS AGO
Sept. 5, 1902.—Hotel keepers of the state are to meet in Fond du Lac the middle of this month to discuss changing the schedule of all hotels from the European to the American plan.—Francis Murphy, the great temperance apostle, after whom there is a temperance league in this city named, will be in the city to speak Sept. 14.

TEN YEARS AGO
Sept. 5, 1912.—Football talk is heard a great deal at the high school now. Guy Curtis is to be coach, while some of the most promising material is in Captain Andy Connell, "Schultz" Follen, Davidson, "Blond" Cannon, Ray, Elder, Joe Ryan, Smiley, Cunningham and "Loather" Dalton. Practice begins Monday night.

Personal Health Service
By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author
THE ACTION OF RADIUM
Many a soulless charlatan equips with an ancient or obsolete apparatus just powerful enough to show whether the victim has a coin in his jeans—which is powerful enough for him—and proceeds to find out what is the matter with every victim who calls.
Even the best of modern X-ray apparatus can practically never be relied upon to make a diagnosis. Such information as the physicians obtain from an X-ray examination is only corroborative of the physician's opinion or suggestive at best. Even though X-ray examination were not necessarily so expensive as it is, the foolish thing a layman can do is to seek an X-ray examination or picture on his own initiative and without the advice of his physician. Of course better X-ray technicians will not give a layman an X-ray examination except by request of a physician, but there are plenty of the commercial kind nowadays who will accommodate the gullible as readily as a photographer will take your picture.
Radium is surrounded with even more mystery and misunderstanding than the X-ray. Like the X-ray in the earlier days, radium has been seized upon as an ideal means of exploiting credulity. It would seem that the average layman, at least the type who reads the popular magazines, would believe that a dash of radium will cure whatever he imagines ails him. This is cruel and false; if ethics were not at such a low level, such schools could never gain a foothold.
Radium bromide, the form or salt of radium used in therapeutics, may be purchased now for $125 per milligram or about $7,200 per grain. But radium constantly gives off emanations or rays which consist of actual particles, and these emanations may be collected and kept for a time in glass tubes. The radium itself loses only half its strength in 1,800 years; the emanation loses half its strength in four days, but the emanation is as good as the radium itself while it lasts. One milligram of emanation in a glass tube left permanently embedded in cancerous tissue, for instance, has the same effect as treatment with one milligram of radium. Radium rays are divided into three kinds: alpha, beta, and gamma rays. Alpha rays, constituting about 90 per cent of the rays radium gives off, have no remedial effect because they do not penetrate tissue. They may be arrested even by a thin sheet of paper. The beta rays constitute 9 per cent of the emanation, and have moderate penetrating power, something less than half an inch of tissues or flesh. It is the beta ray that irritates and causes sloughing, whereas it is the ray chosen for treating various superficial and skin lesions. The gamma rays constitute only one per cent of the entire emanation, but are most penetrating, going through as much as three inches of tissue, and hence gamma rays are elected for treatment of deeply situated lesions.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
HARDY HOLLER.
Do eggs lose their nutritive value when hard boiled? (O. D.)
Answer—No. In fact a hard boiled egg is more easily digested than a soft boiled cooked egg, if well massaged and served or finely chopped, because in this form more surface is exposed to the gastric juice.
A. PROPHET.
Do you think the study of hygiene, with the aim to becoming an expert on health and prevention of disease, a prophylactic, as you call it, would be an undertaking for a man of 25 years who has high school education? How much further schooling would be required?
Answer—No. It would require not less than two years of college work and school of medicine for two years of internship, and two or ten years of general practice and special study.

Ben Told is Heavy.
I have been told that if one eats a meal of tomatoes with a hard-boiled typhoid fever, is that not (X. Y. Z.)
Answer—Do you mean the tomatoes? The tomato is in fact, a vegetable, and has no effect on typhoid fever.

If a child is naturally left handed and is required to use her right hand to learn to write, will that cause any injury to her?
Answer—It seems to be responsible for stuttering in some cases. But why interfere? About four per cent of all children are naturally left handed, and should not be forced to use the right hand alone for fine work.

Q. Why does the state of New York recognize a divorce obtained in Reno, when the grounds for divorce in Nevada are so different from the grounds in New York?
E. T.

A. The constitution of the United States imposes certain obligations upon the states in their dealings with each other. Section 1, ARTICLE IV, providing that "Full faith and credit shall be given in each state to the public acts, records, and judicial proceedings of every other state. This clause has been held to mean that, in civil cases, when the courts of one state have given a judgment, such judgment will be recognized and enforced by the courts of every other state without a new trial. It also means that contracts legally entered into in one state are binding and enforceable in another. In the matter of divorce, by this clause a state is required to recognize a divorce granted in any other state, even though it may have been granted for reasons for which the laws of the first state would not allow a divorce. The only restriction which the courts have upheld in their interpretation of this clause of the constitution is that the state granting the divorce shall have jurisdiction over the parties—that is, that the party should have a domicile residence within the state and that proper notice be given to the other party. Now New York must recognize Nevada divorces if it be shown that the plaintiff had a legal residence in Nevada and the defendant had been legally notified of the suit.

Q. What American products are in the present demand abroad?
C. W. L.

A. The department of commerce says that according to the latest inquiries textiles and foodstuffs predominate among the commodities wanted by foreign buyers.

Q. What is the cause of chickens laying soft-shelled eggs?
J. E. F.

A. When the eggshells are soft the hen's food lacks lime. Some ground oyster shells should be mixed with their food.

Q. What is the temperature of a perfect vacuum and how are light rays conducted in a vacuum?
W. A. N.

A. The ordinary concept of temperature is not applicable to vacuum and an extension of the definition of temperature is required.

Ex-Kaiser to Wed in Month, Report
Berlin.—The former German Kaiser is engaged to be married to Princess Hermine of Reuss. It was learned from an authoritative source.
The wedding, according to present plans, will take place in October after the former Kaiser's birthday.
News of the engagement is still a secret in Germany. Its publication is expected to cause a furore, and divide aristocracy into two camps.
a charge of first degree murder for the killing of his 17-year-old wife and her stepfather, Ed. Bagnsley, 22, was held in custody here.
Bagnsley, who had been separated from his girl-wife a year, had returned to Purcell, near here, Sunday. Neighbors told the police he became reconciled with his wife and then became suddenly insane firing a shot into the girl's body.
Mrs. Bagnsley started to run, but a second shot struck her in the back and she fell dead.
Charles Mattingly, the girl's aged stepfather, ran to interfere. Bagnsley shot and killed him.
The slayer then turned on Mrs. Mattingly, the girl's mother. But the gun failed to explode. He fled, but was seized later.

Gasoline For Every Motor Car
DURING June, 1922, 271 thousand automobiles and trucks were produced as against 180 thousand cars in June, 1921, and 256 thousand cars in May, 1922. This is a new high record.
The estimated increase for 1922 in automobile registration for the 10 states served by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is 500,000, making a probable registration for this territory of 3,850,000 automobiles and trucks besides a largely increased number of tractors.
This means that the already enormous demand for petroleum products will be materially increased. To meet this demand, requires unremitting effort on the part of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana).
When you look down the street and see the curb lined with automobiles, parked so closely that you have difficulty in finding space for your car, multiply what you see by hundreds of streets in hundreds of towns all over the Middle West and you will have a faint conception of the problem confronting the petroleum industry.
Next consider that the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is performing without a hitch a large part of the job of supplying this multitude of machines with fuel. This is made possible by a superb organization and by keen appreciation of human values in business.
The same spirit of progressiveness which is applied to refining methods, machinery, stills, storage depots, and to distributing units is also applied to the personnel of 26 thousand men and women all interested in carrying out the Company's policy of serving the public well.
